

Bulletfilm.com moves towards integrating its community

Monday, November 23th, 2009

Bulletfilm.com, social networking site for filmmakers and film fans, decided to introduce changes to help its users form more integrated community.

"Our first choice was to bring out what was actually happening with our users," says Bulletfilm's webmaster, "We have put their recent actions in one place they can visit often to gain an insight in what new and noteworthy happened to Bulletfilm.com community since they last visited the site. We called this page the Community Dashboard (www.bulletfilm.com/community)".

Bulletfilm.com also presented unified and simplified forum (www.bulletfilm.com/groups) and promised further changes facilitating communication between its users.

About Bulletfilm

Bulletfilm is a networking website for filmmakers and film fans with a comprehensive film festival database and a variety of articles, downloads and tools to help filmmakers be better at what they do.